Armistice Fete Next Month to Be Given by Legion

Armistice Day, Saturday, Nov. 11, will be duly observed in Richmond, the celebration being under the auspices of Richmond Post No. 10, American Legion.

The legion committee is preparing an appropriate program, and it is said that the exercises will be something out of the ordinary line of memorial day observance.

The city council Monday night appropriated $250 to aid in paying the expense of the celebration.

Rough Stuff Was Cut Out Hallowe'en

Hallowe'en rowdiness was omitted this year by the younger generation who always looked forward to hallowe'en as a night of "special privileges" to go the limit in shooting up the town.

Nearly all the bay cities' police forces were instructed to arrest offenders, the same as any other night, and the dragnet caught a number of boys who were not aware the order had gone out to gather them in.

Fifty boys were arrested in Richmond and taken to the police headquarters where they were booked with misconduct, with instructions to appear Wednesday morning for sentence.

Hallowe'en is going out as far as the rowdy features are concerned. It is one of the "privileges" that encourages law-breaking, and we have a plenty of that without releasing the reins.

The customary silence was being observed while a comely young woman was putting on one of the hilltop greens at the Riverside golf course. Down the hill, out of sight, was an oncoming foursome, at least one of which was a green player.

He shot without waiting for the girl to putt. His ball trickled up and on the green, rolling just in front of the young lady's lie. No one moved. No one said a word. The girl looked up and around, walked over to the edge of the hill and in a harrassing tone that could be heard for miles around shouted at the unsuspecting duffer:

"Hey, you big cab driver, go back to South Grove where you belong." And then she sank her putt.—Indianapolis News.

Organized Labor Will Support Richardson Next Tuesday

San Francisco, Nov. 3.—Friend W. Richardson, has many friends in the ranks of organized labor who will vouch for his loyalty to their cause, and who has always proved in a practical way that he is sincere.

In conducting newspapers and printing establishments, he has never employed the unreliable kind, the open "shopper," nor the fellow who "can get along without organization."

Hundreds of union printers in the bay districts will vote for Friend W. Richardson.

Many of these printers are now conducting newspapers throughout the state, and they are all standing pat for him.

Those 30 Amendments

There are many who do not know how to vote on the many amendments which will appear on the ballot. Much "advice" has been given how to vote. Some say do not vote on any of them; others advise to vote "no," if you are in doubt. This reflects on the intelligence of the voter. It is easy for one to familiarize himself with the various amendments. Your sample ballot has been forwarded in time for you to enlighten yourself as to how to vote.

HE PROBABLY GOT WORSE

An Indiana minister of the Christian church has returned to his home town on a vacation. He was imported to preach two sermons on Sunday and consented. His Sunday evening sermon was a doctrinal discussion of baptism. A little nephew was in the audience, and as the sermon proceeded, he soon was wrapped deep in slumber.

On the minister went into the climax of his sermon. He described a scriptural account of a baptism, quoting directly a verse in which the word water was mentioned several times.

Just as he finished the verse, the nephew awoke, and yawned and stretched for a brief moment, and then drawled out loud enough for the entire congregation to hear:

"I want wa-ter."

He Made No Mistake Buying Telephone Stock

Coming down into the great city from the hills of West Chester county on the White Plains express, occupying the seat ahead in the club smoker was an elderly, silver-crested man of the banker type. He was talking with a younger friend about the late Alexander Graham Bell, inventor of the telephone, for whom the one-minute silent tribute was given.

"Bell used to live in the same street with me in Washington years ago," said the venerable commuter. "One day our postman came to me and asked, 'Know anything about this man Bell?'"

"Why? I replied. 'He tells me that he can talk away off to people over a wire, and his invention will do away with letter-writing,' said the postman, 'and he wants me to put all my savings—$4,000—into shares of his company.'"

"Not a bad idea," I told the postman, 'for if his invention does away with letter-writing you have insured yourself against the loss of your job.' Hanged if that letter-carrier didn't plank his fortune into telephone stock, and his family is now one of the richest in the city of Washington."—Raymond G. Carroll, in the Philadelphia Public Ledger.

NO WORRY OF CIVILIZATION

Care-Free Pigmy Indians of Border of Colombia and Venezuela Always Jolly.

No one with authority, no apparent government, no ceremonies, no religion, a carefree people, always smiling, jolly, with nothing to be jolly about.

These are some of the main characteristics of a newly discovered pigmy race of naked red-skinned South American Indians, four feet high, who inhabit the mountain border of Colombia and Venezuela.

Details of this strange tribe are given in the World's Work by George P. Bush, who, with a party of oil prospectors, were the first white men—with the exception of a Spanish padre—ever seen by the tribe.

Of the world outside they know nothing and have no curiosity.

The bow and arrow is their only weapon, carried by the men wherever they go, because they never go anywhere except to get food. Wading into the water they wait for a fish to hover near, then, like a flash, they pierce it with an arrow.

EXPLANATION OF "BLUE BLOOD"

Two explanations are given of how the term "blue blood," to describe a person of aristocratic descent, came into use. One is that it merely was borrowed from the Spanish, where "sangre azul" had long been used to denote the aristocracy of Castile and Aragon—persons who traced their pedigrees from ancestors who had never intermarried with the more swarthy Moors, who had at one time conquered Spain.

The other explanation is that it was founded upon the noticeable fact that families which for generations have not had to "rough it" in any way develop fair skins through which the veins show blue, whereas families who for long periods have had to work hard physically, develop thick skins through which the blue veins cannot be seen.

Amendment No. 16—

Chiropractic Bill

The human frame is the most delicately constituted and the most efficient piece of mechanism on earth. Tinkering with it by a faddist of any sort should be discouraged. A seven years' course is presently required before one gains the privileges of a physician. Seven years of unintermittent labor; years of youth spent in unremunerative toil; years during which the foundation of youth's fortune might be laid.

The possession of a license to practice medicine guarantees to any inquirer that the possessor knows all of the human body and its weaknesses that can be known up to date. To single out certain persons and (after they have had two years' study) license them to treat the sick, is both unjust and unsafe.

How to Use Your Telephone Correctly

When a second telephone number is wanted, upon completing one call, it seems to be the popular belief that if the receiver hook is vigorously and rapidly moved up and down, the operator's attention will be quickly obtained.

But the opposite is really the case. The delicate mechanism which lights the signal lamp in the switchboard will not work properly when the receiver hook is violently and rapidly jerked down.

If the subscriber has completed one telephone connection and desires another, the correct thing is to move the hook up and down several times and slowly. Then the signal light will flash and the operator will answer.

If this correct and simple method of placing a second call is followed the subscriber's time and nerves will be spared and he will receive prompt service, for the quickest way to recall the operator is by moving the hook up and down slowly.

Judge Emmet Seawell Eulogized by Friends

Judge Emmet Seawell, candidate for associate justice of the supreme court, will no doubt receive a most generous endorsement in Richmond and Contra Costa county at the polls next Tuesday, for he has many friends and former neighbors in the bay districts who have known him since boyhood and who are working for the man whom Luther Burbank says is 100 percent capable, and then some. Burbank and Judge Seawell were boys of the same school in Santa Rosa, friends and companions of a lifetime. No more eulogistic compliment could be paid the living than that written by Luther Burbank to Judge Seawell in the former's endorsement of Judge Seawell's candidacy for associate judge.

That Judge Seawell will receive a big vote and an endorsement of the people of this community, is admitted by all.

Charter Decision Is Postponed to Monday

Attorneys Robenson and Windrem, representing the Freeholders Charter League, and City Attorney D. J. Hall, representing the city of Richmond, presented their arguments yesterday before Superior Judge A. B. McKenzie and R. H. Latimer in dispute over the validity of the petition calling for the election of a board of freeholders to draft a new city charter for Richmond.

It is expected that a decision will be rendered before next Monday night, when the election must be called if it is to be held within the time limit of the law.

Ladies of St. Ambrose Church Dance and Entertainment

The monster benefit entertainment and dance to be given by the ladies of St. Ambrose church, Albany, Saturday evening, Nov. 4th (tomorrow night), promises to be one of the biggest and best of the season. Cornell auditorium will be crowded, tickets have been in great demand. The turkey raffle and door prizes are big attractions and have caused much interest by ticket holders, who see a chance for a real live turkey and some cash.

Tallman's orchestra will put the "J" in JAZZ, and the entertainment will be excellent. Don't miss it.

"License"

"License." Were people as a rule sure that vivisection was only employed by thoughtful and at heart kindly physicians, the anti-vivisection bill would receive scant notice. There are few of its present supporters who do not recognize the benefits of intelligent investigators into the causes of disease and who would not consent to a merciful employment of vivisection. The prejudices against it have deep roots in the innate gentleness of mankind. It is quite generally suspected that many thoughtless physicians proceed with a cruel zeal, and this gives rise to a hostility akin to that which influences the prohibitionists—too often—insiders going the boundaries of fanaticism.

Eventually the anti-vivisectionists will triumph, for the simple reason that a fanatic holds on as resolutely and unreasonably as does any bulldog.

The medical society should recognize the gravity of the issue before it is too late.

El Cerrito Hall Was Too Small For Crowd

Veale Rally Tonight At Tenth Street School

The Veale rally tonight at Lincoln auditorium promises to be a fitting climax to the Richmond campaign for sheriff, for there is no doubt about the quality and size of the crowd that will greet the "little general" when he appears upon the speakers' stand, backed by many of the best citizens of Contra Costa county.

The hearty receptions given Sheriff Veale wherever his meetings have been held, prove that the people of Contra Costa county have awakened to the fact that they must not lose this valuable man who has spent nearly a lifetime working for the interests of the county and state.

Thoroughly familiar and expert in the duties appertaining to the office of sheriff, it would be difficult for the people to substitute a man to fill his place. It would be like apprenticing a person to learn a trade, something that takes time to accomplish, considering the many requirements of the office.

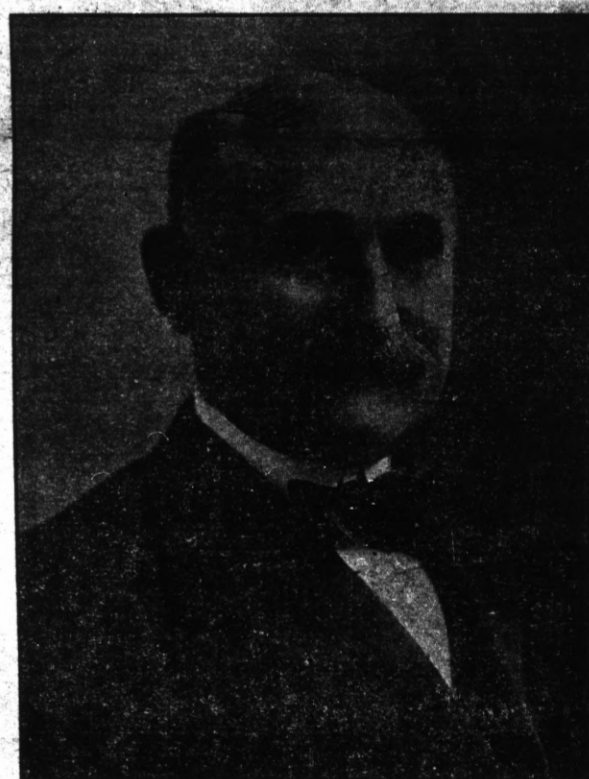

Veale Rally at County Line Was Big One

El Cerrito, Nov. 3.—Hundreds were unable to gain admittance to the hall here last night when a rousing rally was given in honor of R. R. Veale, Contra Costa's veteran sheriff.

Among the speakers was Sheriff Frank Barnett of Alameda county, who is one of the "little general's" staunch supporters and is in a position to know the value to Contra Costa of the man who has served so many years, and his close acquaintanceship with him.

There were other speakers, Wm. Veale "showing up" a number of the fake stories launched by the political enemies of his father and which are now proving a boom-erang, and which will swell the big majority for Veale.

Be present to night and hear the words of praise for a good man who has served you faithfully and well.

CUT SHORT HER ENJOYMENT

Self-invited Guest's Error Excusable Under Circumstances, but Deeply Embarrassing.

It is an established custom in our village to give garden parties for church and charitable organizations. I saw my neighbor stringing lanterns from the trees and placing tables on the lawn for an evening party. Later in the evening, when the lights were gayly swinging, I invited a friend to go over to the fête next door.

We seated ourselves at one of the tables, and as my neighbor approached I asked her what kind of ice cream they were serving. There was no choice, so I ordered two servings of vanilla and as the delicious white cake was passed I expressed a desire for chocolate.

We were nicely served and I was enjoying the party till I inquired of my neighbor what I owed her and she replied, "Oh, we were just having a little party in honor of my mother's birthday."—Chicago Tribune.

"More business and less politics. When I become Governor I will throw out the political wrecking gang and put a construction crew on the job."

The above is said to be a statement made by Candidate for Governor Friend W. Richardson in one of his campaign speeches.

Go to it, Friend. Don't falter. If you keep pre-election promises, and there is every reason to believe you will, you will have set an example that will make your predecessors wish they had followed the Richardson platform by calling a spade by its right name and sticking to it.

John Franklin Cox.

Portland, Ore.—"I could scarcely get around to attend my duties on the farm and knowing that I needed something to relieve this condition, I went into a drug store in Washington and asked the druggist what he thought would be best for my condition. He immediately recommended Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery so I bought a bottle and commenced taking it and it helped me right away. After the second bottle I felt fine, my appetite was greatly improved and I gained strength right along. I am a man seventy-eight years of age and can get around as well as many younger men and feel that I owe a great deal to Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery."—John Franklin Cox, 1248 E. He didn't like white bread—or ready-rubbed tobacco

And probably he preferred horsecars to the trolley

He admitted frankly that his tastes were peculiar. He didn't know why. It was just a matter of fact that while he was an inveterate pipe smoker, he never smoked Edgeworth.

"But don't let that worry you. I don't like white bread. And there are many other things that nearly everybody I know likes—and I don't."

We have always recognized that no one tobacco would just hit the taste of every pipe-smoker. We have always known, too, that we couldn't make all the pipe tobacco in the world even if it were possible to make a tobacco that everybody liked.

So we have been content to jog along, seeking and finding men who do like Edgeworth, who find its individual fragrance exactly suited to their taste.

Those are the men we want to smoke Edgeworth. If we can give them the full joy of smoking and keep our factories running somewhere near capacity, it is about all we expect—and it is enough.

One thing we do want to be sure of. It is this: That every pipe-smoker try Edgeworth at least once and judge for himself whether or not it is the right tobacco for him.

In a way, it is a selfish desire on our part, for we feel that most real pipe smokers will like Edgeworth.

But to make it as easy as possible for you or any other man to test pipe smokers will send you free samples if you'll write for them.

Just write a postcard to us and send us your name and address. If you would further add the name and address of the dealer from whom you usually buy your tobacco, we would appreciate your courtesy.

Edgeworth comes in two forms—Plug Slice and Ready-Rubbed. Edgeworth Plug Slice is formed into flat cakes and then sliced into thin, moist wafers. One slice rubbed for a second between the hands furnishes an average pipeful.

Edgeworth Ready-Rubbed is already rubbed for you. You pour it straight from the can into the bowl of your pipe.

Both kinds pack nicely, light quickly, and burn freely and evenly. Edgeworth is sold in various sizes to suit the needs and means of all purchasers. Both Edgeworth Plug Slice and Edgeworth Ready-Rubbed are packed in small pocket-size packages, in handsome tin humidor, and also in various handy in-between quantities.

For the free samples address Larus & Brother Company, 50 South 21st Street, Richmond, Va.

To Retail Tobacco Merchants:—If your jobber cannot supply you with Edgeworth, Larus & Brother Company will gladly send you prepaid by parcel post a one- or two-ounce carton of any size Edgeworth Plug Slice or Ready-Rubbed for the same price you would pay the jobber.

IMPROVED ROADS

PAINT HELPS STEEL BRIDGES

Life of Many Structures Shortened by Infrequent and Improper Treatment.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The life of many steel highway bridges is materially shortened because of infrequent and improper painting, says the bureau of public roads of the United States Department of Agriculture. Each year a considerable amount of money is spent for the replacement of rusted bridge members that would have remained sound if they had been kept painted; and more serious than the waste of money is the danger to the public due to the weakening of some hidden part which may cause the collapse of the whole bridge.

Officials of the bureau urge that all steel bridges be inspected at least once each year and repainted at the first sign of rusting. Normally repainting is required at periods of from two to five years, depending on the climate. A suitable paint should be used, and if there is uncertainty about any point, information should be requested from the state highway department.

It is a mistake to repaint without properly cleaning the metal of all dirt, rust, loose paint, and blisters. Usually the places hardest to reach are the ones that should receive the most attention.

PROBLEMS IN ROAD BUILDING

Officials of State Organizations and Bureau of Public Roads Discuss Questions.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The committee on tests of the American Society of State Highway Officials met with the officials of the bureau of public roads of the United States Department of Agriculture, in Washington, June 26 and 27, to consider standardization of specifications and tests for road materials. The purpose of this meeting of representatives from all sections of the country was not so much to lay down rigid rules as to harmonize the general practice. Standardization taking into account local conditions is being brought about by a series of meetings between officials from groups of states and engineers of the bureau.

The present activity of highway officials along this line is most encouraging for road building. A few years ago the general tendency was toward individuality in each state, without much opportunity for exchange of ideas and knowledge. Today the tendency is in the other direction, and a better solution should be reached when the problems are discussed at meetings of the best highway engineering talent of the country.

BOOM IN HIGHWAY BUILDING

Federal Aid Has Been Most Important Factor of Recent Years in Road Construction.

Federal aid has been probably the most important factor in the big boom in highway building of recent years, and there are now many long stretches of trunk-line highway serving rich agricultural and industrial sections of the country which are almost entirely federal-aid construction.

The United States Department of Agriculture, which administers the federal-aid fund, points out that a traveler going from Richmond, Ind., to St. Louis across Indiana and the southern part of Illinois, thence to Chicago by way of Springfield and Peoria, a distance of approximately 600 miles, would travel 505 miles, or 75 per cent of the way, on federal-aid highways, practically all of which should be in service by the end of the present season.

LACKING IN CONSIDERATION

As long as the grass in a Chicago public park is healthy and green the citizens seem to look upon it as some sort of garden and keep off of it, as the signs command them. When it begins to die out, however, their respect for it instantly vanishes.

A man in a hurry started one day to cut across a yellow patch in the upper park, but was stopped by a policeman. "What difference does it make?" demanded the citizen. "The grass is half dead already."

"Sure," said the indignant officer, "if you had a sick friend would you be walking on his stomach?"—Harper's Magazine.

Unskilled Help.
A couple of tourists were gazing at the sculptured front of a certain church, when one of them quoted the remark about art being the handmaid of religion.

Gobi Monster Was 'Lowbrow'

Minute Brain-Box in Five-Foot Skull Found in Asia, Says Museum Expert.

DUG UP IN NURSERY OF MAN

Paleontologist of American Museum of Natural History Gives Basis for Belief That Great Desert Cradled Human Race.

New York.—The monster with the skull five feet long, whose remains were found on the Gobi desert, was not distinguished by mental power and probably had a colossal eating equipment; but a minute brain-box, according to Dr. W. D. Matthews, paleontologist of the American Museum of Natural History.

This giant, known as the Baluchitherium from the fact that its only previous remains were discovered in Baluchistan, India, has been represented previously by a few leg bones and other fragments of a skeleton, but the first skull on record is that found by the museum party. From the leg bones it was identified as a big mammal of the rhinoceros tribe, unlike the height of a big elephant. Unlike the short-legged rhinoceros of today, the bulky Baluchitherium stood on long legs like those of an elephant. In order to be able to browse and root from that height it needed a head and neck of tremendous size and length, such as the elephant would have to have if it were not luckily provided with a trunk.

An Orphan Among Fossils.
The dinosaur remains found by the party are probably more important than that of the Baluchitherium, according to Doctor Matthews, although no detailed report on them has yet been cabled to this country. The Baluchitherium has no near relatives among the fossils found on the American continent up to the present. It is believed that many new dinosaurs have been discovered in the ravines and foothills of the Gobi.

This region of central Asia is believed by the museum party to be the nursery of most of the animals and the original home of the human race. Some evidence that it was the great breeding place of mammals has been found, but no bones, skulls, relics or tools have so far come to light to indicate that this was the part of the world where the human race first developed. The Gobi desert is a region of continental proportions and it may require hundreds of years of work by hundreds of expeditions to master the secrets about the early life of man believed to be entombed under its hills and plateaus and which may be exposed along its water courses.

The belief that man first rose in this region has long been held on many grounds, but the theory has been greatly elaborated by Dr. Henry Fairfield Osborn, president of the museum, Doctor Matthews and other American scientists.

The argument which they have worked out in great detail is that the cow, sheep, dog, cat and horse appear to have been domesticated in the Gobi. The older basis for the theory is the tradition of many races that they came from this region. The East Indian tradition, with some evidence to support it, is that India was populated by men from the north. The Chinese tradition is that the Chinese came from the west. The early settlers in the Mediterranean and Mesopotamia are believed to have originated in north central Asia. This region, now called the Gobi desert, is not a desert in the common sense of the word, but a partially inhabited region resembling Montana and Wyoming. It was probably very different ten thousand, or a hundred thousand, or a few million years ago.

"The highest types of the human race inhabited the regions adjoining central Asia or are known to have come from that direction within comparatively recent times," said Doctor Matthews. "The lowest types and most primitive types of man surviving are in the parts most remote from the center."

The Hesperotherium, or newly reported ape-man or higher anthropoid of Nebraska, left his home in central Asia a million years or so ago and migrated by way of Bering straits, then probably a solid land bridge, from Asia to this continent. The pithecanthropus of Java, supposedly half way between an anthropoid and human type, also left Asia within a million years and migrated to Java, probably then part of Asia, but later cut off when the Indian ocean moved into its present place. The canthopius of southern England, the Heidelberg man of the glacial deposits of Germany, the neanderthal man and other primitive men probably were driven out of Asia by the uprising of stronger types.

Finally man, in his most primitive shape—the Hottentot, the Bushman, the Andaman—was driven out of the human nursery.

The better strain of the developing human stock is believed to have remained in the Asiatic home until a few thousand years before the dawn of history, when human beings of excellent brain power and physique were poured from the north into Mesopotamia and about the Mediterranean, migration following migration until all the ancestors of the best stocks of today were emptied from Asia into Europe.

Just Question of Correct Ratio Between Food, Rest and Exercise, Says A. W. Lawson.

'LAW OF PENETRABILITY' RULES

Former Flyer, Now a Scientist, Asserts That No Medicine or New Glands Are Needed—Just Find Proper Balance.

Want to live 200 years? Here's how you can do it.

New York.—Every man and woman should live at least 200 years if they can solve the correct ratio between nourishment, exercise and rest. This is the belief of Alfred W. Lawson, who heretofore has won considerable recognition in the field of aeronautics and now turns his attention to science and long life.

The law of penetrability, according to Mr. Lawson, who built and navigated a 26-passenger airplane from Milwaukee to New York and returned, is the key to perpetual movement, not perpetual motion in the common understanding of the word. Everything in the universe moves according to that law, says Mr. Lawson, no matter whether it is a blood corpuscle or the solar system, and that law determines the life of man.

Mr. Lawson has been working over that law for 30 years, and says only recently he has found how it can be applied by any man, woman or child to check decomposing elements and increase the length of life of a person at least two hundred years.

To accomplish this, no medicine, monkey glands or fountain of youth is needed, according to Mr. Lawson. It is up to each man to just understand the natural law which permits him to live and move and apply it to himself. Explains His Theory.

Following is the way Mr. Lawson explained his theory:
"The principle which causes perpetual movement is penetrability. Everything in the universe is in a perpetual state of movement. This perpetual movement is caused through the ability of one substance of a lesser density penetrating another substance of a greater density.

"We have light, a lesser density, which penetrates air; which penetrates water, less easily, and penetrates steel not at all. So we see that there are some substances which penetrate and some which do not. A hand penetrates the air when waved. This penetration causes displacement and it causes two factors, namely suction and pressure.

"Now, the earth is formed by suction and pressure, as well as the solar system: When we fill our lungs we suck in air. When we exhale we press it out. The heart works exactly the same way as the lungs, although the authorities will take issue with me in this statement. The heart presses the blood out through the arteries and sucks it back, very much as a pump, through the veins.

"We are built up by the suction movement. We are torn down by the pressure movement. As long as we can keep building up the suction movement, as fast as the pressure movement breaks down, we do not age.

About the Balance.

"Now there is a certain balance, a medium. It is this balance which I term 'lost pause,' which I have been working on for the last 30 years. I have lately come to realize that a person can stay at his maturity and live longer or less indefinitely if he only keeps or retains this balance or 'lost pause.' If you can keep yourself at that point where suction balances pressure you can live longer, how much longer I am not prepared to state, because it varies, naturally, with individuals.

"When one organ does not synchronize with other organs one begins to lose his 'lost pause.' One's heart, kidneys, liver, lungs and all must work in unison, and it is in this unison that health is found.

"There are three ways to bring about perfect unison—exercise, nourishment and rest. The perfect balance between these three is the secret.

"Edison says he sleeps but four hours. If this is so he rests enough to make up for his few hours of sleep. One must learn exactly how much sleep and rest one requires.

"Exercise also should be regulated according to the individual.

"Nourishment is merely a matter of bringing into your system that which your system requires. Now this nourishment must balance the exercise. If one day one takes more exercise, one must take more rest and nourishment to offset it. One must learn to absolutely synchronize these three.

"No one can tell you how to do this. Every one must learn to be his own physician. You cannot learn this over night. It takes time and study to learn the perfect balance. But we all can learn it, and it is worth learning for it brings health, happiness and a long life. This synchronizing is really nothing but the balance between the power of pressure and power of suction. And it is that balance which is called health."

Clerk Locks Judge in Safe and Goes to Dinner

Winsted, Conn.—The clerk of the Court of Common Pleas in Torrington locked Judge Bernard E. Higgins in the safe when he went out to lunch the other day, and then sat down to a New England meal such that 40 minutes later he hadn't even thought of going back to work.

The judge began talking the second the safe was closed on him, and he was still expressing his opinion at the top of his lungs half an hour later. He expressed it so loudly that the janitor, finally heard his comments clear through the heavy door of the safe.

The janitor tore the clerk away from his meal and brought him back on the run, very apologetic. But being let out only simplified the judge's task of giving vent to his feelings.

Just Question of Correct Ratio Between Food, Rest and Exercise, Says A. W. Lawson.

'LAW OF PENETRABILITY' RULES

Former Flyer, Now a Scientist, Asserts That No Medicine or New Glands Are Needed—Just Find Proper Balance.

Want to live 200 years? Here's how you can do it.

New York.—Every man and woman should live at least 200 years if they can solve the correct ratio between nourishment, exercise and rest. This is the belief of Alfred W. Lawson, who heretofore has won considerable recognition in the field of aeronautics and now turns his attention to science and long life.

The law of penetrability, according to Mr. Lawson, who built and navigated a 26-passenger airplane from Milwaukee to New York and returned, is the key to perpetual movement, not perpetual motion in the common understanding of the word. Everything in the universe moves according to that law, says Mr. Lawson, no matter whether it is a blood corpuscle or the solar system, and that law determines the life of man.

Mr. Lawson has been working over that law for 30 years, and says only recently he has found how it can be applied by any man, woman or child to check decomposing elements and increase the length of life of a person at least two hundred years.

To accomplish this, no medicine, monkey glands or fountain of youth is needed, according to Mr. Lawson. It is up to each man to just understand the natural law which permits him to live and move and apply it to himself. Explains His Theory.

Following is the way Mr. Lawson explained his theory:
"The principle which causes perpetual movement is penetrability. Everything in the universe is in a perpetual state of movement. This perpetual movement is caused through the ability of one substance of a lesser density penetrating another substance of a greater density.

"We have light, a lesser density, which penetrates air; which penetrates water, less easily, and penetrates steel not at all. So we see that there are some substances which penetrate and some which do not. A hand penetrates the air when waved. This penetration causes displacement and it causes two factors, namely suction and pressure.

"Now, the earth is formed by suction and pressure, as well as the solar system: When we fill our lungs we suck in air. When we exhale we press it out. The heart works exactly the same way as the lungs, although the authorities will take issue with me in this statement. The heart presses the blood out through the arteries and sucks it back, very much as a pump, through the veins.

"We are built up by the suction movement. We are torn down by the pressure movement. As long as we can keep building up the suction movement, as fast as the pressure movement breaks down, we do not age.

About the Balance.

DOES LAUNDRY WORK AND HOUSEWORK TOO

Surprised to Find Herself Feeling So Well

Taunton, Mass.—"I used to have pains in my back and legs so badly, with other troubles, that I sometimes had to stop my work."

My doctor ordered me to stay in bed a week in every month. It didn't do me much good, so one day after talking with a friend who took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for about the same troubles I had, I thought I would try it also.

I find that I can work in the laundry all through the time and do my housework, too. Last month I was so surprised at myself to be up and around and feeling so good while before I used to feel completely lifeless. I have told some of the girls who work with me and have troubles to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I tell them how it has helped me. You can use my testimonial for the good of others."—Mrs. BLANCKE SYLVIA, 69 Grant St., Taunton, Mass.

FREEDOM FROM LAXATIVES

Discovery by Scientists Has Replaced Them.

Pills and salts give temporary relief from constipation only at the expense of permanent injury, says an eminent medical authority.

Science has found a newer, better way—a means as simple as Nature itself.

In perfect health a natural lubricant keeps the food waste soft and moving. But when constipation exists this natural lubricant is not sufficient. Medical authorities have found that the gentle lubricating action of Nujol most closely resembles that of Nature's own lubricant. As Nujol is not a laxative it cannot gripe. It is in no sense a medicine. And like pure water it is harmless and pleasant.

Nujol is prescribed by physicians; used in leading hospitals. Get a bottle from your druggist today.—Advertisement.

The SANDMAN STORY

LOVE OF BROWN LEAF

ONCE on a low branch of a tree in the woods hung a leaf. It had not thrived as did its brothers, and so it grew to be very lonely and sad.

"One day it was swinging in the wind when it heard a sob right under it, and looking it saw a purple flower growing there.

"Why are you so sad?" asked the leaf, forgetting its own troubles.

"You are so pretty and sweet to look upon that you should not cry."

"I am alone," answered Purple Flower. "Some one came along and picked my sisters and did not take me."

"If I can do that I shall never be sorry that I did not grow strong and handsome like the other leaves," said the Leaf. "I have wondered for a long time what would become of me if I dropped down there, where before I met you I looked so dreary."

Before the two little friends could say more along came a breeze and snapped off the last link that held the Leaf on the branch and down it dropped, close beside the Purple Flower.

There it lay close to her and on chilly nights or when it rained Leaf covered the Flower and kept her comfortable.

"Purple Flower grew strong and beautiful, and though Leaf grew brown and withered, it knew nothing about it, for did not Purple Flower tell him each day he was the most beautiful leaf in the world? And she thought he was because of his great love for her.

The strong green leaves on the tree over them looked down and smiled scornfully at the brown Leaf snuggled close to his sweetheart, but the green leaves knew nothing of the joy of a great love nor did they know that beauty that the eye can see is not to be compared to that of a beautiful soul.

And so, when the cold days came and winter with his soft white blanket covered the lovers I expect they slept until Miss Spring came and awakened them, and there, no doubt, she found the Leaf close beside the pretty Purple Flower.

"What's in a Name?"
By MILDRED MARSHALL

Facts about your name; its history; meaning; whence it was derived; significance; your lucky day and lucky jewel

ANNA

THOUGH coming originally from the same source, Anna and Anne are very different names. To call a girl bearing the pretty appellation derived from the Hebrew Chanannah, Anna or Anne indiscriminately is a gross error. They are separate names and should not be used interchangeably.

Anna was first known as the Roman goddess of the circling year. She was confused later with Anne, the companion sister of Dido, whose tragic end is recorded by Virgil in the "Aeneid." According to Roman tradition, Anne pursued the faithless Aeneas to Italy, after the suicide of Dido, and there drowned herself in the river Numicius, where she became a presiding deity.

The Irish have a similar legend to account for their Anna; the daughter of the chief of the Firbolg race drowned herself in the river Liffey, and since the Irish word for river is Amhain, the two words became, on English tongues, Anna Liffey, and were supposed to form the unfortunate lady's name.

There was also a St. Anna in Byzantium for whom the Emperor Justinian built a church in 550. Thus Anna became a popular name among Greek damsels, and a daughter of Emperor Basil married Vladimir, grand prince of Muscovy. Another famous bearer of the name was Anna J'Este of Italy, who brought her title to the House of Guise.

Like Anne, the talkative gem of Anna is the pearl. It promises her good fortune, many friends, and extreme affability. Wednesday is her lucky day and 5 her lucky number.

ASKING QUESTIONS

IN THE old days when it was just as much a part of the young girl's education to be taught what was called "good manners" as algebra or geography—more important for that matter—there was a prevailing notion that it was bad manners to ask questions.

And when a woman indulged in pumping her friends and her neighbors it was usually concluded that she had not had the proper bringing up.

"Goodness knows," said an old-fashioned old lady to me the other day, "there are times when I would like to ask questions, I've got just as much curiosity as anyone else, but we were taught that it was not good manners. They train girls different nowadays."

As a matter of fact they don't train them at all, and if a girl does not receive such instruction at home or does not have an instinctive feeling that it is bad form to ask personal questions she is pretty apt to acquire the pumping habit and to make herself a nuisance and a nuisance a source of annoyance.

Especially obnoxious are questions relating to prices. It is the height of rudeness to ask even an intimate friend how much she paid for anything, how much money she receives as a salary, or what she pays an employee.

Quite as obnoxious are personal questions concerning one's state of health. To be sure, it is only kind to ask generally for a friend's health, but to pry too closely into such things is extreme rudeness.

RICH AND POOR

PITY the poor millionaires!

Some of their shoes are out at the toes. They are finding much difficulty in making ends meet. Those who are out of jobs or have had their wages reduced are not the only ones suffering financial distress during these readjustment days.

There are some who go around the country preaching discontent, claiming that most of the people are kept poor in order that a few men may be made rich or kept rich. Not an inconsiderable number are willingly led to believe this doctrine and, in consequence, make their own lives unhappy and disturb the peace of their fellows.

In contradiction of this sentiment reports from the bureau of internal revenue in Washington, show that the so-called poor are having less trouble than those accustomed to enjoying high incomes.

In 1914 there were only 69 individuals in the United States who reported incomes of a million dollars or more per year. For 1916 the incomes of more than a million dollars totaled 206; but since that year—the howling of street-corner orators notwithstanding—there has been a marked decline. Wealthy men's income returns for 1917—the last year for which statements have been compiled—included only 66 of a million dollars or more.

The law of justice usually works out ok.

Truly, the Female of the Species is More Fortunate Than the Inferior Male.

Two cases in Judge Chesbro's court.

First, the graceless male arrested for speeding after having imbibed two glasses of claret, $250 or 180 days in jail.

Second, the graceful maiden who drove her Cadillac into a man, failed to stop and render assistance, bumped into a yellow car and hit a Ford. And all without a drip of claret. Ten days in jail—suspended.

The graceless male might have done a lot of damage, of course, but actually his guilt was confined to "reckless driving."

The graceful female did do a lot of damage. But, of course, she never meant to and she couldn't help it and she was nervous and there were tears in her eyes instead of claret on her breath, so there you are!

The station agent, who was white, testified that he did not know Jackson and had never seen him before the day of the theft.

Jackson's defense was ingenious. He did not deny that he got the money from the agent, but claimed that he won it.

FINE TRILL SPANED EMOLEN

Grasshopper on Roof of Royal Exchange, London, England, seemingly immune to flames.

One of the landmarks of London is the huge grasshopper of copper which surmounts the Royal Exchange.

It has survived two fires and is all that is left of the original exchange, which was swept away by the great fire of 1666. It was saved and placed on top of the second exchange, which in its turn was destroyed by fire in 1838. The grasshopper was the only part of the building to escape, and was afterwards placed on the third Royal Exchange in the position it occupies today.

A quaint story is attached to this relic of the past. The grasshopper was adopted as a crest by Sir Thomas Gresham, the founder of the exchange, in memory of the creature that saved his life when he was a poor and starving boy.

He was lying in a helpless condition by the side of a country road, and probably would have perished of hunger had not a passer-by been attracted to his position by the croaking of a grasshopper.

TRAVELLER, AN EQUINE IDOL

Mural Painting Recalls Stories of Gen. Robert E. Lee's Famous White War Steed.

The two historical horses, the mounts of General Grant and General Lee, which appear in Stanley Arthur's mural painting, "The First Day of Peace," for the capitol at Dover, Del., have been arousing discussion among veterans who remember the heroes' favorite steeds. The white horse upon which General Lee is mounted in the picture has been identified as Traveller, the silver beauty that went through four years of the war with the Confederate commander and escaped without a scratch. General Lee was his only rider.

No one else might put a saddle on Traveller, and after his master's death he had to be turned out to pasture, for he would permit no body to mount him.

General Lee took Traveller with him when he accepted the presidency of Washington and Lee university and moved to Lexington, Va. He rode his war charger along the highways about the college, often so lost in thought that he passed people without seeing them. To every mood Traveller would accommodate his gait, and he had almost all the gait known to the trained saddle horses of the Virginia gentlemen of that day. When he died Richmond and Lexington mourned an equine idol.

A BRISK CONTRIBUTOR

"I understand Mrs. Gadder is writing verse."

"Yes. She is much encouraged by her literary success. She recently had some lines entitled 'Soul Hunger' published in a poultry journal. An ode to Browning appeared in a weekly agricultural paper and I hear she is doing a series of love lyrics for the Hardware Dealers' Index."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Why Play Favorites?

Electric power is being plentifully furnished in the state by private enterprise. The companies are paying taxes; they are putting up all the money and taking all the risks. Their rates are controlled by the state. Some people are not satisfied. Well, if the state is going into business, why not do so "whole hog or none?"

For instance, there are eggs, which dumbly face us on every breakfast table. Chicago dealers sell them at 27 cents. We pay as high as 90 cents a dozen—and Petaluma is within stone's throw.

Let's have the governor appoint an egg board and authorize that board to bond our property for a hundred millions or so with which to construct and conduct henneries. It is easy to start any business on borrowed money. The money will never have to be repaid. The cackle of every industrious hen then would be a joyous sound.

Or, there are oranges—ten dollars a box to the retailer. The state could take over all the orange groves and, not making a half-loaf of it, all the lemon, grape fruit, nut, and common fruits. Just appoint a board and issue bonds. Just like that! See?

Some stupid people say, "Oh, but the banks cannot absorb so many bonds!"

Never mind about the banks. There wouldn't be any banks. Bankers would go out of the state like mush out of a horn or the Greeks out of Thrace. There would not be any more banks than there are in North Dakota.

If you and I carry this Water and Wind Power Act by our votes, it will not matter much to us anyway. We will both go broke, and what happens to one who is "broke" is not considered of importance.

Common Sense

What happens to the man who borrows every cent that he can, trusting that he can keep up the interest by borrowing more, and then more?

It is safe to predict that the enormous sum of five hundred million dollars called for the Water and Power project will exhaust the credit of California. No sensible observant man believes that the half baked projects will meet the interest charges.

None of the wildest dreamers even hopes that the principal sum will be paid except by another issue of bonds.

How many are going to vote the enormous tax onto themselves? How many are going to mortgage all their property without one reasonable prospect of receiving a dollar in return?

During the world war the percentage of losses in the French army by age show that the twenty-year-old soldiers, both officers and men, suffered most, an average of 29.3 per cent. Men from forty to fifty years old lost in killed between 8 per cent and 5 per cent of their numbers.

THANKING YOU IN ADVANCE

"Rastus," said the judge sternly, "you are found guilty of having stolen two chickens from Mr. Robinson's coop last week. The fine will be $5."

Smiling complacently, Rastus approached the clerk of the court and laid a $10 bill on the desk.

"Yesuh, judge," he said, "so Ah gives you ten bucks which will pay you up and includin' nex' Sattidy night."

UP AND DOWN, UP AND DOWN

One of the elevators of the Washington monument at the capital is in charge of J. B. Evans, who has been on the job for forty-two years. The distance he has traveled up and down the shaft would be equal to three trips around the world.

Everyone benefits by the Activities of this Company

EVERYONE residing in "Superior" California has benefited either directly or indirectly by the activities of this Company.

When over 8000 people are given employment—when over a million dollars a month is put into circulation—the butcher, baker and every home maker feels the prosperity created by such a payroll.

But the enterprise of the P G and E has benefited this section in other far reaching ways. Take for example, the Pit River development work:

The great amount of power ultimately to be generated in this one district will be equivalent to the work of five million laborers a day. This in itself will insure the industrial and agricultural growth for years to come.

And think of this: For every one horsepower in power plant development, on the average of 12 acres of unproductive land worth $300 may have four horsepower in motors for irrigation and general use applied to them. Such land then usually produces $1000 in new crops each year and becomes worth approximately $2400.

To industry it means that every time 25 horsepower is harnessed in the mountains, an average of a factory and a half is started involving a capital investment of almost $150,000, providing work for about 34 more people who can produce over $200,000 in new commodities.

AT THE PRESENT TIME this Company has developed power in excess of the immediate demand. While the work of developing power is progressing every effort must be directed to creating more uses for power, in order that the best interests of the community will be served.
